URGES INSURANCE STANDARD.

Policy Rigid for All States Is Argued for by Massachusetts Commissioner.

BURLINGTON, July 30.—An argument favoring the adoption by all states of a standard insurance policy was made at the opening session here yesterday of the convention of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners by the president of the organization, F. H. Hardison, insurance commissioner of Massachusetts. Such a policy, Mr. Hardison said, would be devoid of uncertain or ambiguous language and would compel competition along the lines of measurable benefit.

In discussing the various ranges of insurance, the speaker said that the cost of accident insurance was too high and quoted figures to show that the payment of 40 per cent commission and 20 per cent expenses made forty cents' worth of benefit cost one dollar.

He referred to the workmen's compensation law and said that he did not believe that the public would allow any such rates of taxation as the premiums charged by some liability companies.

More than thirty state were represented by their insurance commissioners at the conference. Addresses of welcome were made by Governor A. M. Fletcher and Mayor J. E. Burke, with a response by J. R. Young of South Carolina, vice president of the association.
